FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BILLINGS -- Third Thursday Life Lecture Series, sponsored by the Rocky Mountain College Chaplain's Office, presents a lecture by Tim Lohrenz, RMC director of outdoor recreation and intramurals, Thursday, Nov. 17, 2011, 7 p.m., in the Fortin Auditorium. Lohrenz, a 2001 RMC graduate, served in Iraq before returning to take a job at RMC.

The lecture is free and open to the public. Refreshments follow.

The concept of the Life Lecture is to invite a staff or faculty member to speak to the RMC and Billings communities about what life's journey has been like, according to RMC Chaplain Kristi Foster. Speakers are encouraged to talk about pivotal moments, spiritual moments, influential people, and examples of how they have learned life lessons. They are also encouraged to view this talk as an opportunity to impart wisdom they have gained.

The Third Thursday program was pleased to have Mark Moak, RMC art professor, as the inaugural faculty speaker; Lohrenz is the inaugural staff speaker. The program will continue with the Faculty Life Lecture taking place in April and the Staff Life Lecture taking place in November annually.
