

The Academic Resource Center (ARC) is designed to provide services and support to enhance student classroom learning experiences and encourage personal and academic success. As the college shifts to alternative class delivery options including online or other alternative instruction in response to the novel COVID-19 virus, the ARC will provide the following services to support the shift:

1. Tutoring via Google Meets. Online drop-in style sessions are available to all RMC students by clicking on the schedule below.
 - a. Maintaining most, if not all, of the current subjects. This tutoring will be provided Sunday-Wednesday: 6:30-8:30 p.m.
 - b. 2 hours per week dedicated to “how to succeed in online courses” and “tips to use Moodle” this tutoring will be provided on Sunday from 6:30-8:30 p.m.
 - c. Google Meet Codes are published to the rocky.edu/arc website with the schedule of available tutoring times to ensure students are able to join regardless of location.
 - d. To join Google Meet, login to your Rocky.edu Google email account and click on the blue link provided on the schedule during the allotted time slot.

Rocky Mountain College recognizes that student success is dependent on more than just coursework, especially as the novel COVID-19 virus and our response to it evolves. Holistic advising has been available through the ARC to students in need of personalized coaching in areas such as: building a budget, creating a degree plan, time management, goal setting or even acclimating to college life. This service will continue in the following way:

2. Holistic Advising by Google Meets and via phone call.
 - a. Scheduled through the ARC’s existing Calendly links:
 - i. <https://calendly.com/saradwhittle>
 - ii. <https://calendly.com/drew-felton>

Students, staff and faculty in need of additional support can contact ARC@rocky.edu for more information on any of the services we provide.
