Internships and jobs have become limited while health officials try to reduce the spread of Covid-19. This has caused employers to shift internships to become virtual. Below are a few articles and websites that continually update new job/internship opportunities.

Articles on Virtual Internships

If you find yourself in a situation where your internship has been cancelled, here is a little information on what is occurring with some employers.

Summer Resources

Some employers are updating their internship platform to become virtual. Currently many employers are still providing opportunities for students to intern with them but through a remote location. Below are a few job websites that are providing these opportunities for carrying fields of study. When looking through these opportunities it is important to filter out older postings because of the drastic change employers made. Another tip is to reach out to the employer and see what opportunities are still available if the job posting is older.

Indeed provides job and internship opportunities and is updated daily.
